

It's Time for Fans to Rise to Occasion

By Paul Ladewski

Posted on Friday, June 22

In the next few days, fans will have a final chance to salute the 1972 White Sox team, one of the most significant in local baseball history.

They can start with a sellout crowd at U.S. Cellular Field on Sunday afternoon, when the Milwaukee Brewers are in town.

One-time Most Valuable Player Dick Allen will throw out the ceremonial first pitch before the game against the Milwaukee Brewers. Former teammates Hank Allen, Rich (Goose) Gossage, Roland Hemond, Bart Johnson, Bill Melton and Ed Spiezio will be there as well.

For ticket information, visit Whitesox.mlb.com.

On Monday evening, upward of 300 people will pack the Stadium Club for our tribute to Allen and The Team That Saved Our Sox.

I can't think of a better way to say thanks than with two full houses for one of a kind.