

Ventura Is Hit at SoxFest, but More Will Be Needed

Posted on Sunday, Jan. 29

By Paul Ladewski

Robin Ventura scored points with his dry wit and quiet confidence in his SoxFest debut this weekend.

As general manager Ken Williams made clear, however, an inexperienced manager is the least of his concerns right now.

“If we hit, we'll compete in the division,” he said.

In other words, expect Gordon Beckham, Adam Dunn and Alex Rios to have more to say about success on the South Side than the person who writes out the line-up card every day.