

Dedication Ceremonies for 100th Anniversary of Comiskey Park

The Chicago Baseball Museum was proud to attend the special pre-game ceremonies hosted by the Chicago White Sox prior to their game against the Angels at US Cellular Field on Monday, July 5th, commemorating the 100th Anniversary of Comiskey Park. Several generations of the Comiskey Family were in attendance for a dedication ceremony of a special Comiskey Park plaque, located in the centerfield concourse next to a sculpture of Charles Comiskey. It was on July 1, 1910 that the first game was played at old Comiskey Park.

CBM's Founder & President Dr. David Fletcher, Executive Director Connie Kowal, and Legal Counsel Paul Duffy were part of a VIP delegation of attendees that also included Billy Pierce, Moose Skowron, Ron Kittle and Minnie Minoso of the White Sox. Sox PA Announcer Gene Honda presided over the ceremony that included remarks by Billy Pierce, White Sox historian Rich Lindberg, and the Comiskey family.

The Chicago Baseball Museum appreciates the invitation to this event by Bill Kellens (great-great-grandson of Charles Comiskey) and Illinois State Representative Patti Rigney Bellock (great-granddaughter of Charles Comiskey), and Patti's sister Mary Sharon Rigney Kellens and the valuable friendship with all members of the Comiskey Family.

A special ballpark... with special memories... and a special dedication in keeping the history of old Comiskey Park alive.
